Tree Warden's Report.

To the Citizens of Easton:

The work of the tree department for the past year was divided more distinctly than ever before into two separate divisions: (1) the care and maintenance of shade trees under the direct supervision of the Tree Warden, and (2) the gypsy and brown tail moth work under the local Superintendent R. W. Melendy, with the Tree Warden acting in a supervisory position.

In the spring thirty-five sugar maples, four American elms and ten red oaks were planted. Two of the elms were planted on Washington street near the South Easton Green, the remainder on Pine street. Ten maples on Maple street, eleven on Randall street, four on Bay street, and ten on Washington street. The red oaks were planted in South Easton to replace others which had died.

Spraying for the elm leaf beetle was done in all parts of the town. This work was started with the new power sprayer which gave excellent results. As the elm leaf beetles were very abundant and destructive it was found necessary to supplement the spraying outfit with a two line hand sprayer mounted on an express wagon. This was used to more quickly reach the sections of the town farthest away from North Easton, and help in a second spraying in places where the beetles were thickest.

A small amount of trimming was done for the Postal Telegraph Co.

At the beginning of the season the known colonies of gypsy moths numbered 79. These were cleaned up during the winter and early spring and put in shape for the placing of burlaps and summer inspection work. In May 12,035 burlaps were placed. They were carefully inspected during June, July and the first half of August, the last burlaps being turned on August 13th. As a result 2,177 gypsy moth larvae were destroyed. In the gypsy moth scout which started in September and lasted for the rest of the year 74 new colonies were located, of which 5 were in woodland. It is gratifying to note that in only 8 of the 79 old colonies were there found any new egg clusters. Total number of new egg clusters found, 503. Total number of old egg clusters found 11. The clean-up work in the gypsy moth colonies, together with the brown tail moth scout, will make up the balance of the winter's work.

In 1910 209 webs of the brown tail moth were found and destroyed. At the time of writing this report (February 1911) no brown tail moth work has been done, but the indications are that the conditions are somewhat worse than last year, especially on the east side of the town.

As there is fully as much if not more work to be done in gypsy and brown tail moth suppression in 1911 as during 1910, the Tree Warden recommends that the sum of $2,000 be raised and appropriated for gypsy and brown tail moth work.

For the care and maintenance of shade trees in 1911 the Tree Warden recommends that the sum of $600 be raised and appropriated.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN S. AMES,
Tree Warden.

Report of the Board of Health.

FEBRUARY, 1, 1911.

TO THE CITIZENS OF EASTON:

The Board of Health herewith submits its annual report for the year ending December 31, 1910.

The Board has been obliged to expend during the past year an amount in excess of its appropriation, and considerably more than was anticipated at the beginning of the year. The Board has approved bills to the amount of $2,347 01, and in addition thereto there was $25 38 paid on account of the Board before the Board handled its own appropriation. On account of overrunning the appropriation made at the last annual meeting, some of the orders made by the Board have not been paid, and there are other bills that have been presented for which the Board has not drawn orders on account of the lack of funds, but which must be paid when an appropriation for the use of the Board is made.

An analysis of the expenditures of the Board for the past year will readily show that it is practically impossible for the Board to foresee the requirements which may be made upon it, and thus estimate the amount necessary to be appropriated for the purpose of the Board.

By reason of several cases of smallpox in the town during the past year and the precautions to prevent its spread made necessary thereby, the Board expended $837 22. The greater part of this sum was expended in procuring vaccine and providing free vaccination for all the school children, and afterwards in inspecting these vaccinations and re-vaccinating in cases where the original vaccination was not successful.

We had also to contend with an epidemic of typhoid fever in which we were obliged to take care of five members of one family at a cost of $298 00. In this case we had to provide hospital treatment, and for the benefit of the general public, condemn the dwelling house as an improper and unsanitary place, and order the family out. We were also obliged in this case to condemn certain property, that is bedding, etc., which it would be improper to move. This property we had destroyed and of course had to pay its reasonable value.

We have had one case of diphtheria which has cost $185 04. In this case the patient had no home, and the person with whom he boarded did not desire to have him on the premises. With great difficulty we arranged to have apartments set aside for him, we had to procure a nurse, and in this case also we were obliged to pay for property which had to be destroyed on account of infection.

We have also had to approve bills in favor of other cities and towns to the amount of $453 87 on account of care and maintenance of persons who have been afflicted with a disease dangerous to the public health and who have a settlement in Easton. Formerly persons who had a settlement in a city or town and were unable to take care of themselves were provided for by the Overseers of the Poor, but at the present time persons affected by a disease dangerous to the public health, whether they are residents of the town or a resident of some other city or town and have a settlement in the town must be provided for by the Board of Health and are not thereby made paupers.

We have been obliged to take care of several patients on account of other towns, but of course we were re-imbursed for this expenditure by the towns in which the person taken care of has a settlement.

To show the impossibility of anticipating what the Board of Health may be required to do in the way of expending money, we herewith recite a few instances of what we have been obliged to do during the past year.

One case was where a man was born in Prince Edward Island in 1871, came to Easton at the age of three years in 1874 with his father, remained here until ten years of age. His fathe acquired a settlement in Easton and afterwards moved away and acquired no other settlement. The man himself never acquired a settlement other than that acquired by his father. He afterwards married and his wife and two of his children were stricken with diphtheria in Cambridge and carried to a hospital, and the Town of Easton was liable for their maintenance.

Another case was that of a woman, thirty-nine years of age, daughter of an old resident of Easton, but who has not been in Easton for a great many years and had acquired no settlement outside of Easton. She married a man who had no settlement in Massachusetts, had three children afflicted with diphtheria treated at the Boston City Hospital and the Town of Easton had to pay.

Another man left Easton about twenty years ago and never acquired a settlement anywhere else. His daughter was sick with an infectious disease in Malden and the Town of Easton had to pay for it.

The Board has also been obliged to care for a family in town who have no settlement in any town or city in the Commonwealth and for which the Commonwealth is liable. On account of this family we have spent $169 20. This money will be returned to the Town by the Commonwealth.

From this analysis it will be seen that although the amount expended seems large, that by deducting the specific items for smallpox, special expenditures on account of typhoid fever and diphtheria patients, the amount paid other cities and the amount due from the Commonwealth, that the money expended for ordinary purposes by the Board during the past year is only $377 80. We cannot conceive that we shall have any such large expenditure for any purpose or purposes during the ensuing year as we have had for smallpox, so that we do not believe that we will require any larger appropriation this year than we had for last year.

The matter of caring for people infected with a disease dangerous to the public health and who cannot be cared for properly at home, has been a very difficult problem for the Board of Health during the past year. Under these conditions the Board has the power to impress the property of any citizen for the purpose of establishing a hospital, but when it comes to exercising this right, the Board meets with all sorts of practical difficulties. In our experience no person will voluntarily give up his property for any such purpose, and if it is taken forcibly, a price entirely out of proportion to the value of the premises will be asked from the Town. We have several times during the past year been on the point of impressing certain premises for hospital purposes, but fortunately have been able to provide other means or come to some agreement before it was absolutely necessary to exercise the authority given by the statute.

On account of the difficulty met by the Board in these matters, we would respectfully urge the voters of the town to earnestly consider the matter of establishing a hospital which could be used for the purpose of caring for persons infected with a disease dangerous to the public health and who cannot be properly cared for at home. We believe that this would not only be a matter of convenience, but that the town could care for the cases, which it is now obliged to care for, in a more economical manner and would ultimately save money by the venture. Those patients who are able to pay are obliged to pay by law for the care given them by the Board of Health, and in our experience in trying to get patients into hospitals of adjoining cities and towns, we find that it is frequently very difficult for these hospitals to find room for such patients, and that there is always a greater demand for hospital treatment by individuals and cities and towns than the hospitals can afford, so that either in the event of having a hospital that could be used in case of necessity or emergency or having it equipped for taking not only our own patients, but patients from other cities or towns who might want treatment, it would enure in any event to the benefit of the town.

A number of nuisances have been reported to the Board during the past year, all of which have been satisfactorily abated. During the period of the typhoid epidemic we have found householders very willing to co-operate with the Board in putting their premises in the best sanitary conditions possible.

We would call attention to the fact that inasmuch as we have no sewerage system that the greatest care possible should be taken of cesspools and earth-closets, as carelessness and neglect in this regard may have serious consequences in affecting the public health.

During the year one hundred and fifty-six cases of infectious diseases were reported divided as follows: Scarlet Fever, nineteen; Diphtheria, thirteen; Tuberculosis, seventeen; Measles, fourteen; Chicken-pox, twenty-seven; Whooping Cough, three; Mumps, twenty-one; Typhoid Fever, forty-one; Infantile Paralysis, one.

Previous to the March meeting Mr. Horace H. Alger who had served so efficiently on the Board during 1909 declined to be a candidate. While a member of the Board he was a most helpful member and his co-laborers parted from him with regret.

To fill his place Dr. Frank J. McCabe was elected at the last annual meeting. The doctor has brought to the work a keen interest in the public health, and has been an untiring worker, which with an extensive knowledge of hygiene and sanitary science has made him a most valuable member.

In this connection we cannot do better than to repeat the words of our last report. The Board would again urge physicians to promptly report all cases of contagious diseases occurring in their practice. Furthermore we would respectfully inform them that the bacteriological work and antitoxin furnished by the Board is intended only for those persons to whom payment for same would be a hardship. It entails otherwise, needless expense upon the town. A wasteful and unnecessary use of either is to be deprecated.

During the year there were 67 deaths and 107 births, making the death rate 1.3 per cent. and the birth rate 2.1 per cent.

The Inspector of Meats and Provisions has inspected during the year 57 carcases of beef, 154 of veal, 220 of swine, 1 of sheep, all of which have been slaughtered. Two of beef were found not suitable for food and were condemned.

We recommend to raise and appropriate for the expenses of the Board of Health $1,800.

No School Signal.

The signal will be given and the schools closed when there is a drifting snow storm or a driving rain storm, or when the ground is covered with slush. This will mean on an average about three signals a year. There will be other days in the course of the year when children who have no rubbers, or no overcoat, or who are delicate, should remain at home; and the mothers are the ones who can make the decision most wisely on these days. Absence under such circumstances is highly justifiable.

The firm of John O. Dean & Co. of South Easton has consented to have the signal given by whistle from the factory, and it is hoped that the schools at South Easton, Easton Center and Eastondale may be reached in this way.

Teachers.

Fourteen rooms are in charge of teachers who a year ago were at work elsewhere. Nine of these rooms are outside of North Easton. During 1910 twelve new teachers have been hired.

It is increasingly difficult to employ for the schools of the smaller villages, for the wage there paid, teachers who come up to the standard of excellence we try to set. For example, a room paying from $450 to $500 was recently offered to five teachers before one was secured. The problem is the result of a general dearth of good instructors, especially for the grammar grades, and while larger salaries would help in its solution, they would not completely solve it. The situation would be relieved somewhat if local village organizations would assume the responsibility of providing boarding places for teachers.

Book Report Cards.

For the average individual to-day, adult or child, the result of reading is a temporary pleasurable sensation, and not much beside. The reader hurries from page to page, rarely pausing to think, either in agreement or disagreement with the author. The kind of reading is sought which lends itself most readily to this treatment, and the question whether the intellect is strengthened or weakened by such a process is certainly an open one. The characteristic American hurry, the availability of quantities of books, and our failure to produce thought readers in our schools are causes tending to produce the above effect.

In Lincoln's boyhood there were no libraries within reach, so when he got hold of a good book he read it over and over again; while children in school not many years ago read from one book throughout the year, taking up the same selections time after time, gradually acquiring a strong liking for some pages and characters and as strong a dislike for others. To-day, accustomed to having fresh material furnished them throughout the course, children are bored by reading even a play of Shakespeare a second or third time. "Why, I read that in high school," they say. Here is a tendency toward superficiality which library and school must combat. How shall the attack be made?

Our teachers are grappling with this problem in the school room, trying various devices, with the realizing sense that a pupil must be able to read thoughtfully before he can be expected to study. The Ames Free Library has now suggested a way in which we may work together. When a child returns a book to the library, he hands to the librarian a card of standard size on which he has written what or whom the book is about, the time and place of the action, the chief characters, and a very brief account of the contents, telling what he liked about the book and why. These cards are furnished by the library, and are filled in under the direction of the teachers as a regular part of school work. The best cards are filed in an oak case at the library, where they serve as a cumulative catalogue and guide for children seeking good books to read, affording the librarian at the same time an opportunity to increase her influence with the children.

If the teachers will co-operate heartily in this work, great good can be accomplished. The school can not help the library without strengthening itself, and the reverse is equally true.

The High School.

Should our high school prepare for college? Yes, and no. It should give all possible help to the boy or girl who aspires to go to college; but it should not sacrifice the ten who are fitting for life for the sake of the one who is fitting for college. Sometimes critics make the rating of a high school depend on its ability to fit for Harvard in four years. If Harvard's entrance requirements were low enough to suit the mental capacity of the majority of high school students, (they are not) or if their content were in accord with the practical needs of boys and girls who after high school must at once face life, (it is reported that a contemplated change is in this direction), it might be all right to allow Harvard to lay out our course for us. In reality, the high schools have already been led too far astray by the colleges, and if our present curriculum is to be changed, the change must bring more practical courses, courses which will attract and keep boys in school, as our present commercial course does girls. The girls outnumber the boys in the Oliver Ames High School by one third, and I attribute this condition to the fact that the boys especially are not getting what they need. During 1911, the course of study of high schools the size of ours is to be investigated by Deputy Commissioner Orr, and doubtless his recommendations will be helpful to us.

I have asked Mr. Cox to have prepared for this report a list of recent graduates of our high school, together with their present occupations. After looking over this list, you are bound to grant two things: (a) a high school education pays, and (b) we have a commercial course from which pupils graduate qualified to enter business life.

The high school education which we are now giving pays in the case of pupils of less than average ability, if they are workers. On the other hand, I am convinced that the boy or girl of less than average ability who is a hopeless loafer, is injured rather than helped by high school attendance. Such a youth should be at work in a position where failure will mean discharge. Among the marks given, the rating assigned to effort is all-important. Parents should decide whether to keep their children in high school or take them out, by the effort record which they maintain. Naturally, fine marks in the result columns are important; but far more significant and satisfying is the knowledge that a pupil places work before play, and performs conscientiously, without shirking, all assigned tasks. With such a pupil the school has gone a long way toward the attainment of its principal aim—the development of right habits of thought and action.

Alexander Hamilton once wrote: "Men give me credit for genius. All the genius I have lies just in this: When I have a subject in hand, I study profoundly. Day and night it is before me. I explore it in all its bearings. My mind becomes pervaded with it. Then the effort which I make the people are pleased to call the fruit of genius. It is the fruit of labor and thought."

Parent Teacher Association.

In another part of this report I have called attention to an effort we are making to have library and school work together. While this co-operation is important, the united effort of home and school is even more essential.

The Parent Teacher Association, organized in February, 1910, held eight meetings prior to January 1, 1911. It meets in Oliver Ames High School at eight o'clock the second Monday evening of each month when the schools are in session. The average attendance has been about thirty-five. Its continuance depends upon the patronage it receives from the parents of children in our schools. Membership costs only ten cents a year, and the meetings are open to all.

Some of the papers read during the year were:

How many hours shall be devoted by high school pupils to study outside of school hours?—H. Milton Thayer.

Industrial Education.—Wilmot R. Evans.

Good Reading for Children and Good Reading for Mothers.—Mary L. Lamprey.

Vocational Guidance.—Louis P. Nash.

Vocational Training in Germany.—P. W. L. Cox.

Half Time for First Grade.

Partly because of our policy of promoting children whenever there is a chance for them to make good, in this way striving to get the large majority as far as high school at least, using assistants and giving individual instruction to attain this end, some of our grammar grades in North Easton are overcrowded. Although we have solved the problem for the present school year, it may be necessary in the near future either to provide two or three more rooms by building, or make promotion harder in the grammar grades. Raising the entrance age to six, or returning to an eight grade system are other possible alternatives. While this year two of the grammar grades above the fifth are abnormally large, it is probable that next year there will be three such grades. Some parents think that the present temporary method of solving the problem should not be made permanent. If it should be later necessary to consider the erection of a new building, the advisability of reserving the third floor of the present building for general assembly purposes, and of bringing about a separation of grammar and primary children by transferring all of the latter to the new building, should receive consideration.

This year we are using one room instead of two for first grade classes, in this way obtaining a room for the overflow from grades six and eight. Seventy-two first grade children are at the time of writing attending school approximately three hours a day instead of five. By entirely eliminating the formal number work (the beginning can be made more economically in the second grade when the children are more mature) by dispensing with the larger part of the seat work which is of doubtful value as ordinarily conducted, and by keeping the children on the jump throughout the session by having three teachers at work with small groups, we are able to make as good progress in the shorter period as we did last year in the longer one. The teachers are certain that the children are suffering no loss. At the same time, how much better it is for the five year old to have the extra time for out of door play. In a number of Massachusetts cities and towns, Cambridge and Quincy, for example, the shorter school day for first grades, produced by overcrowding, has been continued because deemed the wise policy.

Nature Class.

Through the generosity of Mrs. Oliver Ames, Senior, Easton teachers were afforded the opportunity, last spring, of receiving twelve practical out-of-door nature lessons under the expert direction of Miss Sarah E. Brassill, formerly supervisor of nature-study in the schools of Cambridge, Mass.

A committee is now working under the direction of the Commissioner of Education, investigating the condition of elementary science teaching in Massachusetts schools, so our course came at a very appropriate time. Those of our teachers who are not recent Normal school graduates, have special need of strengthening themselves in work of this kind.

Medical Inspection.

We now have four school physicians instead of three, as last year. Attention is called to important changes in the regulations under which they work. (See appendix.)

Under the present plan, every child in the Easton schools undergoes a physical examination once a year, in the fall term. The arm for vaccination, the throat, ear, nose, teeth, heart, lungs, eyes, hair for pediculosis, body and clothes for cleanliness, and general health are covered in the examination, and the results are recorded on individual cards. Nine reports, one for each year of the pupil's elementary course, may be made on one card. In the High school, a new card is begun. As the pupil goes from room to room, his physical record card goes with him.

As recommended by the board of school physicians, children members of a household where there is a case of smallpox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles or chickenpox are not allowed to attend school, and in the case of other diseases, the attending physician makes the decision regarding exclusion.

School physicians may do their most effective work by preventing rather than by curing disease. I am told that, in recognition of this new field of labor for physicians, the Harvard Medical School is making definite additions to its curriculum. Certainly, in the case of round shoulders, wrong methods of breathing, uncleanly conditions of body and clothes, or unhygienic ways of sleeping and eating, a personal word of advice from physician to child may mean much. It is certain that the personal element must be in evidence in the work the physician does in the school, just as it is when he visits the home, for otherwise medical inspection will fail. If we could afford it, the surest way of doing most of this personal work would be through the employment of a school nurse.

England, in 1907, passed an act providing for a more complete and more general physical examination of school children than has as yet been attempted in this country. Applying the percentages of an investigation of upwards of a million children in England to the 1,181 children who were last year members of Easton schools—and it seems fair to assume that the children in both places would show about the same proportion of physical defects—we would find:

Ninety-five children with adenoids or enlarged tonsils of sufficient size to obstruct the nose and throat, and require surgical treatment;

Two hundred and thirty-six to 472 children with extensive and injurious decay of the teeth.

Four hundred and seventy-two children with unclean heads;

Twelve children with tuberculosis of readily recognizable form;

Twelve children with ringworm;

Fifteen children with heart disease.

Excepting in pediculosis and tuberculosis alone, the reports from our school physicians show practically the estimated number of cases in each instance. These figures are given as illustrative of the size of the health problem confronting all communities.

Sloyd and Sewing.

A new teacher has just begun work in the sloyd department, so no formal report is available. The plan introduced two years ago, by which boys pay the actual cost of stock used in the construction of their models, has worked well. If a boy does not care to pay the small amount exacted, the ownership of the article he has made is denied him. Our Easton children get much for nothing, and an occasional small payment of money only makes them appreciate more the part for which they do not have to pay.

The sewing teachers report 302 articles completed during the year. Here, too, the child has to pay for material furnished in order to own the article she makes.

With our equipment ready at hand, cooking, sewing and woodwork ought to have a place in our High school curriculum. The last two subjects are more frequently taken up in High schools than in the grades. If some of this hand-work could be introduced, an approach to the changed curriculum hinted at earlier in this report would have been made.

Repairs.

The renovation of the gas plant was paid for in 1910. The exterior painting of Oliver Ames High school and South Easton buildings, the shingling of the roof of the Eastondale building, pronounced changes in the heating system at the Easton Center school, and interior tinting, etc., in a number of rooms, were the principal repair items of the year.

Taxes and Schools.

Attention is again called to the statistics on the first page of this report, which prove that, from both valuation and school population standpoints, Easton is raising and appropriating less than the majority of the cities and towns in the State.

Conclusion.

In closing, I desire to acknowledge my obligation for the help and encouragement which have come to me during the year from committee, teachers and the public.

Respectfully submitted,

FREDERIC S. POPE.

REPORT OF
PRINCIPAL OF OLIVER AMES HIGH SCHOOL.

MR. F. S. POPE, SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS, EASTON, MASS.

Dear Sir:—I herewith submit my first annual report as principal of the Oliver Ames High School.

When school opened in September, we found an entering class of only 38 members, as against 52 the preceding year. This accounts for the decrease of enrollment this year. However, the freshmen have remained in school much better than last year, only two of the original 38 having left school.

Often the freshman year is the most difficult year of the four; parents sometimes justly complain that their children did good work in the grammar school, but in high school their work has fallen off. The answers of high school teachers that the pupils are not properly prepared is only a partial truth. Neither does the statement that high school work is much more difficult than grammar school work explain the large percentage of failures. Nor is any of the other reasons often assigned true.

The pupils as they come to us are not poorly prepared, nor should the work of the high school be any more difficult for the grammar school graduates than the work of the ninth grade for those who have finished the eighth grade.

There is, nevertheless, a tremendous break between the grammar and high schools, but it is not so much a break in subjects that makes the work difficult for the first year pupil, as it is a change in methods, the increase in amount of home study, and, most of all, the withdrawal of the ubiquitous, omnipresent supervision of the grammar school. We lose many good pupils from our freshman classes for these reasons. Much can be done under present conditions to increase the care taken with these boys and girls, and all that we can do, we are doing, and as I noted before, we have been unusually successful. Nevertheless, much more should be done, for this is one of the most important needs of our educational system.

The first year class should have a room by itself with a teacher who is a good disciplinarian, who is more interested in children than in subjects, and who possesses a good fund of common sense. This teacher should know her flock intimately, and should be acquainted with their home life and their outside tasks and pastimes. The present high school system does not make this possible; and even the advisory system, which I shall describe later on, does not enable us to keep hold of our first year boys and girls.

The work of the other three classes has been generally good, the discipline has been easy and their willingness to co-operate, their earnestness and general school spirit have been gratifying.

Several methods have been used to bring the home and the school closer together. The school has been divided into four groups, each of which has a teacher for advisor, who keeps in touch with the work the pupils are doing in all their classes, who tries to make the personal relations between teacher and pupil as close as possible, and who writes personal letters to parents when occasion arises.

Two weeks before the report cards are sent home the parents of all those pupils who are doing unsatisfactory work, are notified; and two weeks after cards come out, the parents are again notified that the pupil's work has improved or has failed to improve. In each case of no improvement, the advisor gives an opinion concerning the cause and remedy.

We have tried always to focus our attention on the pupils and to remember that the subject is not an end in itself, but a means for the education of boys and girls.

A change has been made in the afternoon sessions. They are no longer optional, but are compulsory unless the pupil is especially excused by his teacher or principal. They come only twice a week instead of every day. Further, sessions are not so much to force the pupil to make up back work as to keep him from getting behind, by forcing him to catch up as soon as he begins to neglect his work, or is in danger of getting behind for any other reason. This change from a remedial to a preventive measure has been so successful that those teachers who have made intelligent use of it, had to give very few unsatisfactory marks for the first term. The requirements of time for home study have been reduced, and may be still farther reduced as soon as we can get the pupils to use to the greatest advantage all their school time. Two hours should be the maximum for a pupil of the first two years. If I were a parent I would not allow a child of mine, between the ages of 13 and 16 to study regularly more than two hours a day out of school. No lesson should be assigned which will take more than one hour of concentrated effort.

The appearance of the teacher's room has been improved somewhat by the addition of portieres and a couch cover, and especially by the gift of a beautiful quartered oak rocker, from the class of 1910. Part of this room has also been converted into a principal's office. The addition of a rug and some new portieres would be greatly appreciated and would make the room much more sightly and homelike.

The tests for sight and hearing showed several cases of defective eyes and ears. The parents of these pupils responded to the notices sent them in every case, I think, by having the defective organs examined by a regular practitioner,. Dr. Porter has examined all the pupils according to the school committee regulations. The teeth of the pupils he found generally in poor condition. There are so many ways in which the health and pleasure of the pupils is dependent on sound teeth, that I cannot too strongly urge parents to have their children's teeth looked after by a dentist, and, more important still, that they insist that the child develop the habit of brushing the teeth thoroughly at least once every day with some antiseptic tooth-wash.

An attempt has been made to change the opening exercises from any monotonous formality. This has been accomplished by letting the pupils themselves conduct the exercises one morning each week, the principal only two mornings and the other teachers two mornings. Some carefully chosen passage of literature is usually read, often with explanation and comment; and sometimes the reading is replaced by a talk on school spirit or on ethics, not too often, for both school loyalty and morality come from suggestion and example rather than from regular talks. Rev. Abram Wyman and Rev. W. Lenore Hood have kindly led the opening exercises. Visitors are most welcome to this part of the school session, especially on Friday mornings when the pupils conduct the exercises themselves.

Special courses should be granted whenever there is any good reason for them, but only when the reason is good. That the faculty feels strongly on this point may be judged by the fact that no special course has been granted this year. If the unusual pupil can complete the school requirements (72 credits) in three years, he should be given his diploma; and if it takes the immature pupil five years this should be considered no disgrace. The organization of a high school necessarily makes it appear that all its pupils are expected to mature at the same rate. It is the old error of treating the classes as groups and not as individuals. The fact that one boy matures slowly and another rapidly should be better recognized and more sanely considered by parents and teachers.

I wish to acknowledge the receipt of a very fine set of the works of Theodore Roosevelt, a gift from Mrs. Anna C. Ames.

I desire to express my gratitude to you, to my fellow teachers and to the pupils and their parents to whose sympathy, co-operation, and advice I owe what little success I have had as principal. I also wish to thank Mr. Smith for his many kindly attentions and willing assistance.

I append a list of the graduates of the Oliver Ames High School for the past seventeen years, together with their present occupations. Miss Winchester, to whom we are indebted for this list, will be glad to receive suggestions, corrections or additional information, concerning our graduates.

Respectfully submitted,

P. W. L. COX.

REPORTS OF SPECIAL TEACHERS.

Supervisor of Music.

Mr. Frederic S. Pope, Superintendent of Schools:

Dear Sir:—I think it is Henry Van Dyke who says: "It is only by thinking about great and good things that we come to love them, and it is only by loving them that we come to long for them, and it is only by longing for them that we are impelled to seek after them, and it is only by seeking after them that they become ours, and we enter into vital experience of their beauty and blessedness." All this might be said of the study of music in the public schools. It is by thinking about music that the child comes to love it, and by loving it he comes to long for it and to seek after it, until he enters into "vital experience of its beauty and blessedness." Many men and women today are lovers of music, because during their childhood they were compelled to think about it and to study it in the public schools.

The work in the graded schools has progressed favorably during the year. We are constantly doing more in the way of individual work. Children should be so taught that they become, individually, good sight readers. This is the purpose of the Abbott Individual Sight Reader, which has just been placed in the fourth grade. We hope later to introduce it in all the grades above the fourth. Once it was thought sufficient to teach a whole class to sing at sight, but those days are past. Someone has asked: "What is meant by ability to read a language?" and has himself answered; "Is it not that familiarity with the signs of language which enables us to comprehend an English sentence the instant it meets the eye?" If we ask "What is meant by ability to read music?" we must answer, "It is that familiarity with the signs of music which enables us to comprehend a musical phrase the instant it meets the eye." Measured by this standard how few readers of music there are. I know of no other way by which this can be accomplished but by individual sight reading exercises.

The Melodic Reader was placed in the eighth grade last year, this year the Harmonic Reader has been introduced in the sixth and seventh grades,

The work in the High School has been excellent, as could be seen by the performance of "Gallia" at the graduating exercises. It called forth many words of appreciation, which praise was doubtless well deserved by the boys and girls who had put into it so much hard work.

Respectfully submitted,

J. E. SHEPARDSON,
Supervisor of Music.

Supervisor of Drawing.

Mr. Frederic S. Pope, Superintendent of Schools:

In looking over the achievements of the past year, and comparing them with those of the preceding years, I find a marked improvement in the work of the grades.

The fall program consisted of the study of nature, including the drawing of leaves, flowers, vegetables and fruits. Much interest was shown in this work throughout the grades, and some excellent results accomplished.

The children's hearts lie close to nature, and it is easy to awaken them to think, feel, and express themselves in water color and crayon. Whatever the nature study may be, it is surely impressing its own lesson of beauty and fitness. The children are afforded an opportunity of seeing and learning what is beautiful about them. Observations of this kind appeal to the feelings of the children, and help them in seeing what Ruskin calls "that inexhaustible loveliness of nature."

A child will draw an object more accurately than he will describe it in words, and he can express in drawing what he cannot express in any other way. Art is something that must grow with a child's life; let the love and taste for the beautiful come through the association with beautiful things.

Printing has been introduced into all the grades, and the work that was carried on by the pupils at home was most gratifying. In the eighth and ninth grades the children selected a favorite stanza or poem, and worked it out independent of the class, as to size, proportion and arrangement on the paper. This required much thought on the part of the pupil, and here he correlated his mathematics with his drawing. The final sheet was finished in gold on Japanese paper.

A fair was held in two of the grades in December, the object being to raise money for pictures for the school room. There was much interest and enthusiasm on the part of the children in making and constructing articles for the fair. It resulted in the purchase of several pictures.

This unconscious influence of beautiful things which the child sees, is worth much to him as a means of education and culture. It is necessary that a few good pictures of the best masters should be placed upon the walls of each room, and by so doing bring the child into contact with the uplifting influence emanating from a good picture. The choice of pictures should be made with great care. Better wait until one fine picture can be purchased, than to buy several small ones. They should be valued friends—not merely something to relieve the bareness of the walls. The picture should awaken and quicken the child's higher nature, and uplift and ennoble his life and thought. Life means much more to children who grow up with eyes trained to a sense of the beautiful. I hope that in the coming year some action can be taken to raise money to add at least one new picture to each room. I would suggest that the Committee appropriate an amount of money to each grade where money is raised for school room decorations.

A set of carving tools was provided for the High school, frames of various shapes were made and designs drawn and carved and finished in color or gilt.

The girls worked designs in cross-stitch for sofa pillows, table-cover ends and blotter pads; also, designs for shirt waists, ties and collars. The freshman class constructed heavy brass trays, designed the corners, cutting them out by means of hand saws.

The mechanical course in the High school includes the use of the drawing boards, T-square and triangle, problems in geometry, working drawings, scale drawings of machinery, and developments.

We have an opportunity to round out the education of the children, cultivate taste in the home, and benefit the entire community. The interest of parents in their children, and the interest of children in their work, will surely create enthusiastic interest in art.

I wish to thank the Superintendent and the Committee for the generous supply of material, and the teachers for their hearty co-operation.

Respectfully,

KATHERINE D. WHITMAN,
Supervisor of Drawing.

REPORTS OF GYMNASIUM AND BAND INSTRUCTORS EMPLOYED THROUGH THE BENEFICENCE OF MRS. ANNA C. AMES,

MR. FREDERIC S. POPE.

Dear Sir:—I am pleased to report that at no time since the building of the gymnasium have the boys showed such efficiency as at the present time, and I need no other justification of this statement than the exhibition which we gave so many times last year, together with the results of our competitions with outside schools. In looking over the list of boys who graduate from the school this year, I find that five out of the nine have been regular attendants in the gymnasium for the last five years at least. The result is that in the present senior class, we have one of the fastest basketball teams in the state and also pupils who show exceptional ability as gymnasts. This is a direct result of dumbbells, chest-weights and apparatus work which they have had in the last six years, for in every instance the best gymnast will make the best athlete.

The boys reports as usual on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, high school pupils from two until four o'clock, and grammar boys from four until six, with the exception of Saturdays when the class is in the morning. The attendance at present is fully as large as at any time in the past. The baseball and basketball teams have been unusually successful. In baseball, while we lost a good many games, most of them were lost by one or two runs as was the case with Brockton, Thayer Academy, Plymouth and Abington.

To show our standing in basketball I print the following record from the year 1903 to the present time:

	Won.	Lost.
Season of 1903–'04,	8	6
" " 1904–'05,	14	5
" " 1905–'06,	15	4

7.	Quincy,	at	North Easton
16.	Weymouth,	at	North Easton
18.	Revere,	at	North Easton

The schedule this year is by far the hardest one we have ever undertaken, as we play all of the best teams in Eastern Massachusetts and we have great hopes of winning the championship of the State.

Respectfully submitted,

HENRY S. PRATT.

MR. F. S. POPE.

Dear Sir:—Each year brings a larger entering class to the gymnasium, showing that the parents realize the splendid physical benefits to be derived from systematic physical exercise.

Without a doubt, one of the best and most popular all-round exercises for girls, is basketball, when played with the modified rules and proper supervision. It teaches courage, self-control, and increases the mental as well as physical activity to a high degree.

The Ling system of Swedish gymnastics has no equal in its harmonious development of the body, and is the system most commonly used in the large cities.

Club-swinging is always greatly enjoyed for its graceful swinging rhythm, and is especially beneficial for the back and chest muscles.

The folk dances of the various nations have proved a great success among the boys and girls and are heartily entered into and enjoyed by all.

The beauty and artistic effects are greatly enhanced by the picturesque native costumes, which Mrs. Anna C. Ames, our most generous benefactress, has each year provided.

Taking all into consideration, the children of North Easton enjoy advantages, through Mrs. Ames' generosity, which are not to be had in even the large cities, and these are most vital advantages,—which tend to the moral, mental and physical uplifting of the growing youth.

Respectfully yours,

MRS. MAUDE E. SCANLON.

MR. F. S. POPE.

Dear Sir:—Every instrument in the band is in use at present, also four extras for the beginners.

During the year we have tried over thirty boys, spending from one to six weeks before deciding which ones to keep. Some have given up, offering one excuse or another; while others were totally unfit for the instrument they were using. It requires a lot of practice to come up to what we expect of a boy when we give him an instrument, so a boy's mind must be thoroughly made up to work before he applies for a chance to play.

The usual number of concerts have been given during the summer (14), and we have played about twelve times on paying engagements, including three trips to Boston, where the playing of the boys received great praise. They were highly spoken of for the marching as well as playing on Oct. 12. At the Tremont Temple conference Sec. Hormel and Chairman Lewis were particular to call on me and express their surprise and satisfaction.

We have tried to keep on hand the music of the day, such as popular musical comedies and songs as they are demanded, but I would prefer never to see one a permanent part of the library.

The rehearsal night is Monday as regularly as it is possible to have it, but sometimes it takes place on Tuesday. Absences are all noted, and at the end of the season a boy's attendance forms the basis for division of what money is to be divided, making a much better system than the number of years a member.

Respectfully submitted,

H. E. BRENTON.
